Anova Announces Jane McGregor as Director of Programs and Services

London, ON – Anova has named Jane McGregor as Director of Programs and Services.

“I am thrilled to announce that Jane McGregor has accepted the position of Director of Programs and Services,” Jessie Rodger, Anova Executive Director, stated. “We are always looking at ways we can improve our operations and we’ve recognized opportunities to connect our programs internally to better support our clients. Jane’s extensive knowledge and experience in the violence against women and gender-based violence sectors will help unite and improve service delivery at Anova.”

The newly created Director of Programs and Services role is a natural next step as Anova works to be recognized as leaders in social change, not just locally, but provincially and nationally.

About Anova: Anova is the largest shelter and sexual assault centre in Ontario serving and supporting thousands of survivors every year. With expert staff opening the door and answering the call through shelter, support, advocacy and education, Anova helps ensure abused women, their children, and all oppressed individuals today and tomorrow can find a new start by delivering much-needed services and advocating for systems change.
